Our Own Little Home.

Wednesday Eve.
May 17-1922.

Dearest Eric Boy-

It's time your little girl was sound asleep -
but she's been busy
tonight, & she just
must talk with you
a minute before she
tumbles into dreamland.

Did you remember
that today was our
second anniversary?
You can be sure I
did - for girls never forget - weren't we
happy that evening

2
dear, out in the big
out of doors - with the sun just setting in the west - + the water away below us - the new
green leaves on the trees -
+ spring flowers
everywhere! somehow
you always sought
the happiest way to do things dear - Oh -
how I loved you that night - how much happiness
was reflected in that little diamond - when I opened my eyes -

3) It watched it glisten + sparkle with all the changing colors of the universe - but Eric-dearest - if I loved you
then - how much better
I love you now - for
now I know you
better - I know life
better - I understand
so many things that there were hidden in
a half-fearful shroud - All I ever dreamed
of, or hoped for, you have been to me, and more.
If you could only
know how I

4) appreciate your sincerity - you've always dealt so squarely with me, dear - & somehow - whether
in your arms or separated by a thousand miles - I feel so safe, & restful & happy in
your love -
All that a wife should be to her husband, I want to learn to be to you - ~~that~~ I have so much to learn, dear - but our own little home makes things so much easier for me - Loving you more than I can express -
Your own little girl -
Alma
